Points of Interest: reference Wikipedia

- Grave of William Long, aka Harry Longabaugh, aka "the Sundance Kid". Research<sup>[19]</sup> is underway that may prove that the Sundance Kid did not die in Bolivia in 1908 but returned to his family in Utah and bought and operated a farm 2 miles (3 km) east of Duchesne until his death in 1936. He is buried in the Duchesne City cemetery, <sup>[clarification needed]</sup><sup>[20]</sup>
- Pope Museum: Home of Duchesne pioneers Fred and Marie Pope. Museum contains miniature, true to scale, vehicles that depict the life style of the early settlers of the Uintah Basin. Museum is located at 370 West 100 North.
- Theodore Cemetery: Early pioneer cemetery that functioned from 1906 until January 1914. John Jacobs was the first burial. 41 early settlers are buried here. The cemetery was abandoned because of the difficulty of digging graves in the cobblestone-laden soil. The cemetery was recently restored, and a large monument with names and information is located on the north end of the cemetery. Located on "D" hill, take the dirt road on the west end of town up the hill and turn east at the top. Travel east 300 yards to the monument.
- Father Escalante Monument: North of Highway 40 on east entrance of town
- Early Duchesne Settlement Monument: 130 West Main on north side of the road

- War Memorial, World War I monument, World War II monument, Korean War monument, Vietnam War monument, Desert Storm monument: all located at 150 West Main.

History of Duchesne County

Reference Wikipedia: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Duchesne,\_Utah

Duchesne (/ˈduːˈʃeɪn/ doo-SHAYN) is a city in and the county seat of Duchesne County, Utah, United States.<sup>[5]</sup> The population was 1,690 at the 2010 census,<sup>[6]</sup> with an estimated population of 1,770 in 2018.<sup>[2]</sup>

Geography:

Duchesne is located just west of the junction of the Strawberry and Duchesne rivers in the Uintah Basin of Northeastern Utah. The Duchesne River drains the southwest slope of the Uinta Mountains, and the Strawberry river drains the eastern slopes of the Wasatch Range and is connected to Strawberry Reservoir. The two rivers combine at Duchesne, and the Duchesne River continues east to join the Green River at Ouray, Utah.

Native stands of cottonwood trees and willows grow along the river banks, while sagebrush and rabbitbrush fill the un-irrigated bench tops. Alfalfa is the main cultivated crop of farmers in the area.

Via highway, Salt Lake City is 114 miles (183 km) to the west, Vernal is 58 miles (93 km) to the east, and Price is 54 miles (87 km) to the south.

According to the United States Census Bureau, the city has a total area of 2.5 square miles (6.5 km<sup>2</sup>), all of it land.<sup>[6]</sup>

History:

18 September 1776 The Dominguez–Escalante Expedition was a Spanish journey of exploration conducted in 1776 by two Franciscan priests

1822–1840 French Canadian trappers Étienne Provost, François le Clerc, and Antoine Robidoux. From these French Canadian trappers the Duchesne River and ultimately Duchesne City received its name.

1900–1905 Leases were arranged with the Ute tribe through the Indian agent "Major" H.P. Myton to provide pasture for sheep in and around where Duchesne city is located now.

1905–1906 On June 7, 1905 the Secretary of the Interior directed the Commissioner of Indian Affairs to select one or more tracts of land in the Uintah Reservation suitable for townsites, so they might be reserved as such under the statutes of the United States.<sup>[10]</sup> Three sites were designated, which are the current sites of Duchesne, Myton, and Randlett. A month later President Theodore Roosevelt approved the selections and declared these lands reserved as townsites.

1907–1914 The men of Theodore organized the Boosters Club, and the women organized the Standard Bearers in 1907. Both groups became a forceful factor in the early development of the town. With the flooding of the rivers every spring, the Boosters club was finding it hard to attract people and business to the "muddy" little town. The Boosters Club raised $500 to build a bridge across the Strawberry River at the mouth of Indian

Canyon. The bridge was completed in 1908, and later replaced by the state in 1914. In 1908 A. M. Murdock took down the tent and built the first store, barber shop, and post office, the "Pioneer Supply". A town hall was built by the citizens in 1907. After the flooding issue was resolved the town grew quickly. In 1910 the population of "Theodore" was 929.<sup>[12]</sup> The town's first newspaper, The Duchesne Record, started publication April 8, 1909. By 1910 the citizens had decided to change the name to "Duchesne". The post office kept the name "Theodore" until the town's petition to change the name was acknowledged on May 5, 1911. The town was incorporated in 1913, and M. Murdock was the first mayor. On July 13, 1914, "Wasatch County was divided and Duchesne County was created." Duchesne was made the county seat on Nov 5, 1914, by popular vote of the citizens of the county.<sup>[13]</sup> The name "Duchesne" is taken from the name of the river that runs through town and may have been named by fur trappers in the 1820s in honor of Mother Rose Philippine Duchesne, founder of the School of the Sacred Heart near St. Louis, Missouri, although other theories as to the name exist. A photograph dated 1909, showing the A. M. Murdock Pioneer Supply Store and post office at Theodore, Utah (which was located approximately where Kohl's Market stood in Duchesne in 1991) appeared in a postal history magazine in 1992.<sup>[14]</sup> The Theodore post office operated from 1905 through 1913, when it was renamed Duchesne.<sup>[15]</sup>
